YGA SHADOW CABINET

The year 2018 marked a significant milestone in the political landscape of Pakistan, as the Youth General Assembly (YGA) achieved a notable accomplishment by introducing the concept of a shadow cabinet. Prior to this, the notion of a shadow cabinet had been absent in Pakistan's governance structure. This transformative step taken by YGA brought about a fundamental change in the dynamics of opposition and governance, promoting a new era of accountability and responsible governance. The shadow cabinet plays a crucial role in the political landscape of Pakistan by serving as a critical opposition force to the government.

The shadow cabinet is composed of members from different political parties who are not in the ruling government. Each member of the shadow cabinet is assigned a specific portfolio or department that corresponds to a government ministry. The purpose of the shadow cabinet is to closely monitor and scrutinize the policies, actions, and decisions of the ruling government in their respective areas of expertise.

The role of a shadow cabinet in any country, including Pakistan, is to serve as a constructive opposition. By scrutinizing government decisions, the shadow cabinet aims to highlight any shortcomings or potential issues in policies and bring them to the public's attention. This helps to ensure transparency, accountability, and robust debates within the political system.

Currently, YGA is working across 18 departments to review policies. For the youth, a shadow cabinet can offer several benefits. It provides an opportunity for young leaders to actively engage in the political process, gain practical experience, and contribute their ideas and perspectives on policy matters. By participating in a shadow cabinet, young individuals can develop leadership skills, enhance their understanding of governance, and shape future policies that are more inclusive and representative of their generation's interests.

Overall, the introduction of the shadow cabinet by YGA in 2018 has brought a valuable addition to Pakistan's political landscape. It serves as an important check on the ruling government, ensures accountability, and provides a platform for diverse voices to be heard, including those of the youth.

YGA has published five booklets focusing on gender-based crimes, with a particular emphasis on analyzing existing laws and their implications. The booklets include comprehensive statutory reviews of listed laws, covering Cybercrime, Domestic Violence, Anti-rape laws, Acid and Honor-based Crimes.
